indigenization of language in the african francophone novel a new literary canon discusses the question of indigenization in the african francophone novel analyzing the prose narratives of nazi boni ahmadou kourouma and patrice nganang this book contends that african literature written in european languages is primarily a creative translation process recourse to european languages as a medium of expressing african imagination worldview and cultures in fictional writing poses problems of intelligibility developed to express and reflect western worldviews and sensibilities european languages are employed by african writers to convey messages that seem to be at variance with european imagination these writers find themselves writing in languages they wish to subvert through the technique of literary indigenization the significance of this study resides in its raising awareness to the hurdles that literary creativity in a polyglossic context may present to readers and translators this book provides answers to intriguing questions centering on the problematic of translation in contemporary african literature it is a contribution to current research aimed at unraveling the conundrum surrounding the language question in african europhone fiction particularly the cultural functions of translation in literature potential translation problems have to be addressed in order to make african literature written in european languages intelligible to global readership with the advent of globalization transcultural communication has become an activity of enormous importance to the international community it is a subject of great interest to translators linguists language instructors and literary theorists this book outlines a new approach for considering the complex issue of hybridity and its translation by building on the concept of translation as a three phase process reception transfer and re production it establishes the contextual function of hybrid elements in a text as the basis for translation or translation comparison based on a focused translation purpose the model and methodology developed in the book provide the reader with operationalised tools for contextually abstracting the function of hybrid elements understanding dimension and using it as the basis for their transfer in another language translation dimension toward the decolonization of the europhone african novel is a treatise on the problematics of language choice in europhone african literature vakunta s research is rooted in the notion that the postcolonial african fiction writer is at a crossroads of languages groping for linguistic re orientation using the prose of fiction of patrice nganang ahmadou kourouma mercedes fouda nazi boni and gabriel k fonkou as corpus he contends that postcolonial african fiction is an offshoot of a linguistic tinkering process that enables writers to tinker with the language of the ex colonizer in a deliberate attempt to divest indigenous writing of its hegemonic vestiges
