the lessons of influential 15th century fencing master sigmund ringeck are brought to life once again by david lindholm and peter sv rd the duo behind sigmund ringeck s knightly art of the longsword this lavishly illustrated companion to longsword examines ringeck s instruction on fighting with the sword and buckler fighting in armor with longsword and spear and wrestling these disciplines and more are fully explained both by ringeck s text offered in the original old german as well as the authors english translation and detailed captions for the step by step illustrations the timeless works of ringeck who is best known for his interpretations of the teachings of grand master johannes liechtenauer offer a rare opportunity to experience a firsthand account of this important period in the development of the western martial arts this book will be treasured by aficionados of the medieval arts of combat for generations to come foreword by john clements johannes liechtenauer the father of german martial arts created a system of combat that was second to none later authors wrote books detailing his art some for earnest combat and others for a sportive version that have survived to the present day this book attempts to draw together the writings of various masters of liechtenauer s school into a single comprehensive source detailing the art of fighting in earnest not limited to a single author nor to just the basics of the art this book attempts to show the full range of liechtenauer s art without mixing in any of the more sportive sources from later authors in addition to the techniques themselves the knightly art of the longsword includes information on strategic concepts fundamentals equipment finding a school training and even how to teach the art nb this is the perfect bound edition this is an extravagantly illustrated and engrossing exploration of the art of medieval fighting the book features some of the most interesting selections from a manuscript by the renowned italian fencing master fiore dei liberi depicting the knightly arts of fighting with swords daggers and polearms both on foot and on horseback ringeck s invaluable 15th century compilation of the lessons of german fencing master johannes liechtenauer is given new life by two modern students of the sword the original text is presented with extensive interpretations and detailed instructive drawings to capture the medieval swordsman's art written by the king of portugal a renowned master horseman hunter and jouster and dedicated to his queen this amazing book examines the knightly art of horsemanship is a unique glimpse into the world of medieval equitation hunting and knightly combat with the lance and sword nowhere else in literature are details of historical jousting technique offered interwoven with this advice the portuguese king reveals a keen sense of character as he examines the knight's soul during the frightening moments on unruly mounts and under the crushing impact of a heavy lance during the joust when knights thundered against one another to earn renown and prestige at this moment he says there is no hiding from one's self and in this and other tests is a knight's mettle truly tested bem cavalgar an important work on techniques surrounding the equestrian arts of the 15th century and is a critically important work of chivalric literature a knightly handbook that must stand with geoffrey de charny's book of chivalry or ramon lull's book of knighthood and chivalry the noble knight in shining armour emblazoned in brightly coloured surcoat encased in polished metal and wielding deadly weapons is an evocative image for the first time the modern science of combative systemics has been combined with period resources to bring a comprehensive treatment of a knightly combat system in an attempt to prove the eternal omnipotence of the knight's martial arts with this in mind the author treats the medieval combat system within the context of reality based fighting including references from wing chun karate and modern self defence systems also included is a translation of the long sword and other parts of the hs 3227a manuscript perhaps one of the most important documents of the german school to those who study the physical culture of arms in medieval europe the german fechtbucher treatises on combat arts are among the most important surviving documentary sources no other region in europe produced such an extensive body of writings on the techniques of medieval combat among these and indeed among the martial arts treatises produced by any culture the massive compendia commissioned by the scholar swordsman paulus hector mair 1517-1579 stands out as uniquely ambitious and monumental the text survives in three manuscript copies each consisting of two volumes with each manuscript running to approximately 1200 pages and includes about 17 weapon forms depending on how one counts them from two handed sword to rapier armoured combat to sickle and scythe each form consists of anywhere from 8 to 136 lavishly illustrated techniques in many cases followed by one or more seminal texts on the form the various weapon forms are mutually integrated with each other in techniques and vocabulary and collectively offer an enormous volume of interpretable material the combination of text and image in the illustrated techniques offers obvious advantages to the understanding of a physical practice and mair is unique among the german masters in systematically giving instructions to both combatants so that as one learns how to perform a technique they also learn how to counter it lastly one of the most important features of the ars athletica is the latin translation which serves as something of a rosetta stone for interpreting the vocabulary of these long lost martial arts in this series dr jeffrey forgeng translator of the equally seminal fechtbucher of joachim meyer and hans leckuchner has compiled a team of translator practitioners to tackle mair's opus over a decade of work has gone into transcribing translating and annotating the ars athletica treatise on the martial arts presenting both the original german and latin as well as a modern english translation volume one of this series presents the longsword which was the traditional centerpiece of the german medieval tradition and provides the core instruction through which all other weapons of the tradition can be understood in three languages and full color illustrations readers will find a complete curriculum of cuts thrusts disarms and grapples even using the sword as a short spear which forms the foundation for armoured combat the subject of a later volume knightly dueling is a complete overview of the fighting arts of german chivalric dueling on horse and on foot during the late middle ages and early renaissance through the words and pictures of original source texts of the great german fight masters of the 14th through 16th centuries extraordinary works that poetically preserved medieval methods of armed combat it reveals knightly dueling for what it truly was mortal combat over some grave matter with battlefield weaponry and armour until now no single book has encompassed and clarified the scattered existing historical information on german dueling with swords lances daggers pollaxes and other weapons knightly dueling shows the ruthless reality of man to man combat of the german kunst des fechtens art of fighting providing a thorough understanding of johannes liechtenauer s roszfechten horse fighting and kampffechten duel fighting it gives middle high german transcriptions as well as the first and only modern english translations of works from various fight books by liechtenauer s renowned masterly interpreters including hanko dōbringer peter von danzig hans talhoffer and andre lignitzer the book also presents an illustrated blow by blow account of a deadly duel from a german fechtbuch fight book primary source information regarding specific training of noblemen for duels and the training of noble youth in the combat arts and a unique glossary of historical german chivalric terms for arms and armour lavishly illustrated with many pieces of period artwork knightly dueling restores the concept of german chivalry to its rightful martial role and is a must for any serious scholar of the dynamic field of european martial arts a story of the last years of henry vii s reign in the late 14th century the german swordsman johannes liechtenauer developed and codified a system of armed combat with sword spear and dagger that spread through the holy roman empire and dominated german martial arts for nearly 300 years by the end of the 15th century a fellowship of swordsmen in frankfurt known as the brotherhood of saint mark or marxbruder had been granted an imperial charter to train and test swordmasters peter falkner was a long time member and sometime captain of this famed fencing guild and it was during this tenure that he set about creating an illustrated fight book of his own colorful painted figures and short captions depict combat with a wide variety of weapons the longsword dagger staff poleaxe halberd dueling shield and mounted combat where his work excels however is in its extensive treatment of the falchion like messer and the unique variations of core techniques of the liechtenauer canon in this first printed edition of falkner s work german martial arts teacher and scholar christian tobler includes a full translation transcription and analysis combined with a photographic reproduction of the original manuscript the end result is a lovingly rendered english translation of a 500 year old picture book that shows an adaptation of the liechtenauer tradition by a known master of its most prestigious school as taught over a century after its foundation
